Showcase description

I was born in Cagliari in 1982, in the hottest summer my mum ever remembers. When I was a child I wanted to be an archaeologist, a fashion designer, a singer, a dancer and Michael Jackson's simultaneous interpreter. I graduated in Foreign Languages and Literatures but I wanted to explore communication deeper, so in 2005 I moved to Pavia where I specialized in Theoretical and Applied Linguistics. In 2007 I started taking pictures for fun, exploring people and the environment around me. I went from practice to theory and went back practicing again as assistant for still life, food and interior design photographers. As a freelance, I previously got into stage and backstage photography, then I've dedicated myself to conceptual images and portraits for artists. Since 2009 photography is my work. But I still blush when someone call me photographer.
