Showcase description

I recently got my master's degree in Communications. I'm looking for a job in a dynamic and energic framework, a place where I can feel inspired and encouraged, where to improve and compare myself with communication and organization sectors professionals. I think determination and total commitment are the right instruments to learn and succeed. I am willing to take on any challenge, facing problems with passion and energy. I want to have the chance to experience the working reality, turning my knowledge into practice. It's important to learn new skills as well, soaking them up, like a sponge, and give my abilities back the moment they are needed most. I would welcome the opportunity to utilise the knowledge I have gained from my formal studies and my previous work experiences. Over the past years I gained experience in Press Office role and in the event organisation area. I had the chance to develop my communication skills and to increase my back office abilities. During the last years at university I managed my time to achieve balance between my studies, my interests (photography and travelling) and my economic support.
