Showcase description

During my studies I undertook a range of relevant classes regarding art, graphic design, layout design and drawing. I have moved to Florence from my hometown to study the drawing and sketching technique from the masters of the past, as well as a wide range of art canons and assumptions. I am also trying to apply these skills to a strong range of notion and a solid culture about art, in fact the thesis I wrote for my master degree graduation is about the nexus between the notion of physiognomic -coming from Leonardo da Vinci and evolving through several Italian artists trough the centuries- and the modern character design; I have also tried to develop the best layout design I could achieve, regarding this kind of content. My thesis includes a chapter which showcases a number of concept art works about the process of visual development of characters. Additionally, I have developed skills about graphic design and layout design, and I am proficient in the utilization of Adobe softwares such as Photoshop, Illustrator and In Design.
