Showcase description

My name is Emanuele. I studied graphic design techniques, I followed and I constantly follow graphics courses, web design and video production which led me to be professional and competent in the field of corporate communication. I have never stopped studying and I will never do it, to stay up to date and propose coherent and above all contemporary solutions. My goal is to find functional and creative solutions for the image and communication of the companies or individuals I work with. In my career I worked on various forms of advertising. Among which were the creation and management of advertising campaigns, brochures and flyers; creation of new logos or restyling of existing ones and brand advertising; corporate communication, creation and management of websites. I deal with helping companies to build their own visual identity. The projects carried out are followed by the first briefing with the client to the final realization of the print (including the management of the suppliers) or the putting on line of the project.
