Showcase description

Hi! I'm Andrea Lepori, a freelance graphic designer and web designer. I deal with programming static and dynamic websites, e-commerce creation, prototyping of wireframes for websites (something is missing from the web) but also of logo design, advertising campaigns, creation of catalogs, posters, books, magazines and all that world related to advertising graphics I love simplicity, I love to design and build websites I have a Graphic design specialization in a drawer. It is little used, practically new, from the moment I discovered a new passion: CODING. I study in Milan but I live in a small town in the province of Varese. I am a calm and curious person, sometimes even too much. I like to experiment and have a blank sheet in front to completely distort it. When I work, I only need three things: concentration, creativity, and a good coffee on my desk
