Showcase description

Manuel Turchi is a freelance illustrator from Imola near beautiful Bologna. Since he was a child he loves drawing, he started reproducing his favorite cartoon characters and then he got to draw everything he had in mind. Thanks to a drawing competition he won a scholarship for the international comics academy, one of the best schools for cartoonists and illustrators in Italy, he learned from professionals in the sector everything there is to know about the world of illustration and comics. With his illustrations he currently works with private, publishing houses, video game publishing houses and companies, always trying to improve with all the love for this profession.
