Showcase description

Here's the translation: --- My name is Maripina, and I'm a young creative who loves graphic design in all its forms. My studies at the Brera Academy have prepared me both artistically and professionally: I have a strong foundation in art graphics, but my true passion is working with computers and the Adobe suite. My favorite word is "experiment": I love combining "analog" techniques with digital ones, creating original and impactful works. My work experience has allowed me to engage with artistic and creative environments, where I have grown professionally and applied my skills. For example, at Serigrafia Experience Lab, I spent three years vectorizing clients' projects to create silkscreen transparencies, designing posters, and mockups. Currently, I pursue my passion for graphic design through various freelance projects, though I would love to connect with companies and graphic studios to continue growing.
