Showcase description

My name is Manuela Langella, and I am an illustrator, surface pattern designer, and painter. For over ten years, I have been working in the field of visual creativity, combining my love for drawing, color, and composition with ongoing artistic research that spans both digital and traditional techniques. I create visual worlds where decorative patterns, poetic illustrations, and paintings inspired by nature, art, and emotions coexist. What I do I currently create patterns and illustrations for fabrics, stationery, and other surfaces, as well as develop artistic collections for my personal brand on my website manuelalangella.com. I teach online through courses dedicated to surface pattern design and illustration and cultivate a community of passionate creatives on patternlovers.com. Alongside this, I pursue my painting practice with original works on paper and canvas, exploring themes of perception, nature, and memory. What I'm looking for I would like to expand my collaborations with editorial companies, lifestyle brands, textile, stationery, and licensing industries, offering my experience and style for projects that highlight decorative and narrative art. I am also interested in collaborating with galleries or organizations that promote contemporary art and the dialogue between illustration and painting. I am seeking opportunities that allow me to bring my visual world to life through projects that combine art, beauty, and vision.
