Showcase description

During my university studies in Psychology, I developed strong organizational and interpersonal skills, including effective communication, problem-solving, and relationship management, which I believe would be valuable in a dynamic work environment. I have an excellent command of the English language and solid proficiency in Microsoft Office, particularly Excel. I'm a team-oriented person with strong listening skills, qualities that enable me to collaborate effectively and constructively. I have a strong passion for the events industry and stay constantly up to date with the latest market trends. I am eager to enter the professional world in the fields of event PR and marketing/communication.
