Showcase description

I'm Nina, an Italian-Danish illustrator and designer based in Milan. Drawing and making things by hand have always been my way of expressing myself. My work sits at the intersection of image and matter, I create illustrations that become patterns, objects, surfaces. Through delicate and playful imagery I explore everyday moments, imagined worlds and nature, with a curious and empathetic eye. I studied at the Brera Academy of Fine Arts and specialized in Design for Kids at the Politecnico di Milano. I design and lead creative workshops for children and collaborate with UxforKids, an organization that brings young people closer to design and innovation. I love experimenting, getting things wrong, starting over, that's how I find the most interesting solutions. Open to collaborations, editorial projects and commissions.
