Showcase description

Writer, journalist degree in Anthropology. Activist for human rights of Indigenous People, she is an adopted member of the Crow tribe, Montana, and honorary member of the Four Winds Cherokee Tribe in Louisiana. Founder at Mauna Kea Publishing House. President at Omnibus Omnes Association. Owner at Europrinters Consulting. "Travelling is not merely a matter of visiting places, but also of perceiving the spirit of a people", says Raffaella Milandri. As a solo-traveller she has been welcomed by native tribes of the most remote corners of the world. About herself she says: ?I love simple people, and I?m proud to be one of them?. Milandri uses her writing, photography and reporting to inform and to promote awareness of human rights themes and of social issues, through information campaigns, pleas, petitions and conferences, and spreading film clips, books and interviews on media and social networks. She has participated in various Italian TV and radio programmes, and numerous articles on her travels have appeared in newspapers and magazines. Her real-time travel reports are widely popular on Facebook. The band Tabula Osca dedicated a song to her humanitarian commitment https://youtu.be/18ePxizn7ug . Here we mention some of her destinations: Papua New Guinea, Alaska, Kalahari Desert,Tibet, the Kimberly in Australia. Some of her human rights awareness campaigns in favor of Indigenous People: the Native Americans, the Pygmy People, the Bushmen, the Adivasi in Odisha.
